

have successfully dehumanised the reception & set upon a plan to embarrass the people who are unable to use the technology. The only progress this is, are likely the promotions earned for designing & implementation of these interfaces.

- ✓ It is very hard to speak to a GP when you work full time and can't take your phone into work. I recently had my medication withheld for chronic back pain, which should not have happened as I could have gone into withdrawal, plus the pain I was in.
- ✓ Having requested an appointment with a doctor via the ask my GP app I at least expected to talk to a doctor before being passed on to another medical practitioner without any consultation taking place.
- ✓ Was seen on time
